

NJASL Future Leader Awards

These awards are presented to outstanding students who are enrolled in a library media program in a New Jersey university. The graduates of library schools are nominated by faculty members and selected by the head of the department of each of the schools as well as the NJASL Student Affiliate and the Scholarship and Awards Committees. The Dr. Carol Kuhlthau Future Leader Award will be presented to a Rutgers University graduate and the Dr. Amy Job Future Leader Award to a graduate from William Paterson University. Nominees are asked to complete the following application and submit it to the NJASL Scholarship and Awards Committee Chairperson. Future leaders will be selected based on their application and essay.

Each Future Leader agrees to serve a minimum of one year on an NJASL committee. They will receive membership in NJASL for one year, conference admission for the fall and registration for the NJASL Spring Meeting.

To apply, please submit the following information:

1. Nominees' name, address, phone number and email address
2. School from which the nominee is graduating
3. Nominator's name, address phone number, email address, position and relationship to the nominee
4. State which committee preference on which nominee would prefer to serve
5. An essay on one of the topics listed below:
 - How to advocate your school program in a time of budgetary cuts.
 - How an individual school librarian can make a difference in the school community.

By submitting this application, the nominee certifies that they will fulfill their obligations of committee membership to NJASL within two years or repay the membership fee, conference and Spring Meeting registration to NJASL.
